Although it can be difficult to receive negative feedback about a service provided, complaints and concerns help us look for opportunities to improve. Complaints are important learning tools to promote positive change across Fraser Health – think of them as “gifts” to our organization!